Let's Start!

Writing Spot: A Kitchen Disaster!

Learning Outcome

Identify and describe personal and regional eating habits and cooking in a range of communicative situations.

Can Do Statements

- I can write about how to prepare food.
- I can write about quantities and amounts.
- I can write about what is necessary.

Ask your partner:

- Are you a chef in the kitchen?
- Do you have to follow recipes or can you create your own meals?

Let's Explore!

Listen to Vanessa and Sally in the kitchen. Is Sally being a help or a hindrance?

* A person or thing that makes a situation difficult.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Vanessa: So are you looking forward to dinner tonight?
Sally: Yes, I've never had to make a meal in a crockpot before. It smells amazing!
Vanessa: That would be the rosemary and garlic. Can you pass me a few of those measuring cups?
Sally: What? Are you making something else?
Vanessa: I thought I'd surprise with some dessert. How does some sponge cake sound with cream and a punnet of strawberries on top?
Sally: You're spoiling me. We have to watch Boston Nights at nine. We can't forget!
Vanessa: Absolutely! Can you come here for a minute? I need your help.
Sally: Sure.
Vanessa: Pour two cups of sifted flour into the bowl with the eggs from the carton and a cup of sugar.
Sally: Ok ... what's next?
Vanessa: You have to stir all the ingredients.
Sally: Hold on ... Did you need this?
Vanessa: Oh no, I forgot the vanilla essence. We've got to add a teaspoon of that as well.
Sally: Sure ... Oh No!
Vanessa: Sally, maybe you should stay out of the kitchen that is after you help me clean up this mess!
Sally: I'm sorry, Vanessa.

Let's practice!

Can you follow a person's instructions?

Instructions: Complete the sentences below by choosing one option from the word Bank.
