Let's Start!

Let's get busy in the kitchen.

Learning Outcome

Describe routines and regular activities in a wider range of social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- Do you ever help to cook at home?
- How many people have you cooked for?

Can Do Statements

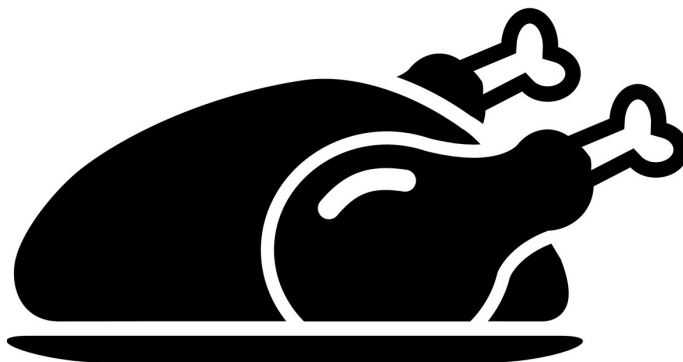

- I can talk about quantities and amounts.
- I can describe how to prepare food.
- I can express what is necessary.

Let's Explore!

Peter and Sally also like to cook. Are they helping Vanessa?

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Peter: OK, these onions are chopped. Is that enough?
Vanessa: Oh, thanks, Peter, but that's a bit too much.
Peter: Alright, I will have to put some aside. Should I just sauté them in the pan?
Vanessa: Oh, I've got to stir-fry the chicken, but you go ahead and use the saucepan.
Sally: How much chicken do you need?
Vanessa: Oh, with that many people, we're going to need more than a pound.
Sally: Do I stir in the 4 ounces of cream now?
Vanessa: No, that's got to go in later after the chicken is cooked.
Peter: Do I sauté the red peppers too?
Vanessa: OK, you guys, you know what? I really appreciate all your help, but there are just too many cooks in this small kitchen. How about you guys just chill with a glass of wine?
Peter: Alright. It's way more tasty when you cook it anyway.
Sally: We can set the table.
Vanessa: Sounds great. I need to finish combining all the ingredients.

Let's practice!

Do you need half a pound* or half a kilo?

* In the U.S., the measuring system is different from metric. One kilogram is about 2 pounds.

Instructions: Match the quantities to the amount of food.

AMOUNT OF FOOD:

- Peter, that's too much onion
- Vanessa needs a pound of chicken
- Do I stir in the 4 ounces of cream now?
- That's enough of red peppers

QUANTITIES:

- Measure about 500g.
- It's more than enough.
- We don't need more.
- Half a measuring cup.

Let's practice!

Peter and Sally are helping Vanessa. Do they know how to cook?

Instructions: Fill in the blanks with the words from the box to correctly complete the sentences.

Target Words

- to put aside (verb): to save or keep to be used at a later time
e.g. Peter will put aside the extra onions to be used at another time.
- red pepper (noun): a sweet bell shaped pepper
e.g. The red peppers also need to be sautéed before they're added to the curry.
- tasty (adjective): describing food that tastes good e.g. Peter thinks Vanessa's cooking is always very tasty.
- to set the table (expression): to set the place for each person at the dinner table with a fork, knife, glass, etc.
e.g. I can't cook, so I will help set the table.
- to combine (verb): to put together or to mix
e.g. The last step in making the curry is to combine all the ingredients together.
- ingredient (noun): one of the necessary food items or spice in making one dish e.g. All of the ingredients have to be prepared right for the dish to taste good.

Learning Points

Too much or too many?

You use "too much" or "too many" to say that there is something in excess or to express that you don't like the situation.

Use "too much" with uncountable nouns.

Use "too many" with countable nouns.

Examples:

Too much	Too many
Be careful! That salt is a bit too much. You have drunk too much wine! You are cooking too much chicken.	There are just too many cooks in this small kitchen. There are too many ounces of cream! More than 3 chicken legs is too many.

Examples:

- Oh thanks, Peter, but that's a bit too much.
- There are just too many cooks in this small kitchen.

You need to do it!

"Have got to" is used to express necessity.

"Have got to" has irregular forms in the past and future. Look at the chart below.

Present	Past	Future
I've got to start the vindaloo sauce.	I had to start the vindaloo sauce.	I will have to start the vindaloo sauce.
I've got to put some onions aside.	I had to put some onions aside.	I will have to put some onions aside.
