

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

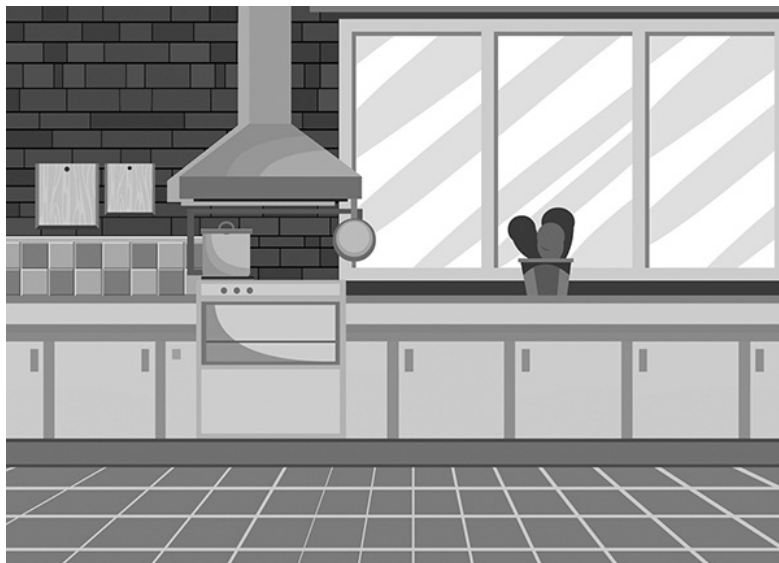

CONTENT

• Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Do you have stories from your kitchen?

Learning Outcome

Identify and describe personal and regional eating habits and cooking in a range of communicative situations.

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about people's past habits.
- I can talk about quantities and amounts.
- I can describe how to prepare food.

Ask your partner:

- Have you ever burned anything while cooking? How did it happen?
- Do kitchen accidents happen very often to you?

Let's Explore!

Has Vanessa always been the perfect chef?

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Peter: Let me ask you, Vanessa, have you ever had an accident cooking? I mean have you ever burned anything? Did anything not turn out the way you wanted?
- Vanessa: Oh, of course. I used to make a lot of mistakes and burn my food a number of times.
- Peter: I find that unbelievable. You're like the perfect chef.
- Vanessa: Yeah, I would put in too much of one seasoning. Then my my dishes would taste horrible.
- Peter: How did that happen?
- Vanessa: If I put in a half ounce of salt instead of a quarter ounce, it alters everything.
- Peter: True. I used to cook more often when I was in college. Sometimes when I put in a little less water, it changed the sauce. But I would still eat it.
- Vanessa: Yeah, when I was in culinary school, my mom used to help me a lot. We would experiment with how to use various ingredients.
- Peter: Nice.
- Vanessa: I used to follow recipes very closely, but now I have a sense of how much is enough.

Let's Practice!

Was Vanessa always* the perfect chef?

* We can also use "always" to talk about a regular action in the past.

Instructions: Read the dialogue on page 2 again. Circle the correct answer.

1. Was Vanessa always the perfect chef?
 - a. She has always cooked really well.
 - b. She used to burn her food.
 - c. She only made a few mistakes.
2. What did Vanessa's mom use to do?
 - a. She used to burn the food.
 - b. She would change the sauce.
 - c. She and Vanessa would experiment with ingredients.
3. Did Peter use to cook a lot?
 - a. He used to only cook with water.
 - b. He used to cook more when he was in college.
 - c. He would change the sauce.

Let's Practice!

How much should you put in?

Instructions: Proofread the sentences. Underline the incorrect words. Write the correct words to complete each sentence. Use capital letters where necessary.

1. I put in a have ounce of salt instead of a quarter ounce.

2. Sometimes when I put in a litter less water, it changed the sauce.

3. I used to follow receipts very closely, but now I have a sense of how much is enough.

Extension Activity

Write a dialogue with your partner on how you made a mistake in your cooking.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Write a dialogue with your partner on a big mistake you made when cooking a meal.
- Use verbs for preparing food.
- Talk about your mistake in using quantities, with ingredients or with seasoning.
- Use your imagination when you write even if you don't cook well.
- Practice the dialogue with your partner.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I tell a story in a dialogue about cooking.

☐ ☐

I use action words on preparing food.

☐ ☐

I express quantities in food.

☐ ☐

I practice speaking with my partner.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- to burn (verb): to heat or cook a piece of food so much that it becomes brownish black e.g. Vanessa used to burn her food a few times.
- to turn out (verb): to produce a positive result e.g. Sometimes my cooking doesn't turn out the way I want.
- unbelievable (adjective): unable to believe something that happened
e.g. Peter found it unbelievable that Vanessa ever made any mistakes.
- seasoning (noun): spices put on raw meat before cooking to add flavor e.g. Putting on the right amount of seasoning would make your dish taste perfect.
- horrible (adjective): really bad e.g. My dish tasted horrible because I put in too much of one seasoning.
- to alter (verb): to change
e.g. If you put in the wrong ingredients, it could really alter the taste of the dish.
- to experiment (verb): to try something unknown
e.g. Sometimes it's interesting to experiment with different kinds of food.

Learning Points

Talking about past habits

"Used to" and "would" express an action that occurred regularly in the past.

You use Wh- questions and yes/no questions to ask about past habits.

You use questions in Present Perfect to ask about experiences.

You use questions in Simple Past to ask about specific facts in the past.

You use used to to talk about the past. It is not a tense but it is like a tense. You use used to for the past only.

You use would to describe the pattern of action in the past.

Structure:

Used to	Would
Did + Subject + use to + verb in base form (infinitive) + complement Wh- question did + Subject + use to + verb in base form (infinitive) + complement	Would + Subject + verb in base form (infinitive) + complement Wh- question would + Subject + verb in base form (infinitive) + complement

Examples:

Where did you use to go to school?

Would you often spend your summers at the beach?*

You use Present Perfect tense to ask about experiences that happened in the past up to now or that are important now.

There is no past time reference.

Structure:

Auxiliary Have Has	+ Subject you/I/we/they she/he	+ ever	+ verb in past participle	+ complement
--	--------------------------------------	--------	----------------------------------	--------------

Examples:

Have you ever had an accident cooking?*

Have you ever burned anything?*

You use the Simple Past tense to ask about experiences that happened in the past. There is a past time reference or the context is clearly in the past.

Structure:

Learning Points

WH (optional) What/where/when Why/how	+ Auxiliary Did Was Were	+ Subject you/we/I/they he/she you/we/I/they	+ verb in base form	+ complement
---	--	---	------------------------	--------------

Examples:

Did you make dinner last night?

When did Matt and Amy's plane arrive yesterday.

Examples:

- Did anything not turn out the way you wanted?
- Was Vanessa always the perfect chef?
- Did Peter use to cook a lot?
- What did Vanessa's mom used to do?

Learning Points

How much is enough?

You use quantifiers when you want to give someone information about the number of something: how much or how many.

You use quantifiers with both countable and uncountable nouns. Look at the chart to learn more:

Only with uncountable nouns	With uncountable and countable nouns	Only with countable nouns
How much?	How much? How many	How many?
a little	no/none	a few
a bit (of)	not any	a number (of)
-	some (any)	several
a great deal of	a lot of	a large number of a large amount of	plenty of	a great number of
-	lots of	-

Examples:

- I used to follow recipes very closely, but now I have a sense of how much is enough.
- I used to make a lot of mistakes and burn my food a number of times.

