

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Peter and Sally chat after a nice lunch.

Learning Outcome

Describe routines and regular activities in a wider range of social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- Do you like to eat out for lunch?
- How often do you eat out?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about daily routines and eating habits in the past.
- I can express what is necessary.
- I can talk about quantities and amounts.

Let's Explore!

Peter and Sally chew the fat after lunch.

* To "chew the fat" is to have a casual conversation about various topics.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Peter: Oh, another delightful lunch.
Sally: Do you eat out a lot?
Peter: No, I get takeout probably twice a week and then dinner out on the weekends.
Sally: That's a lot. I only eat out once on the weekend. I need to save money.
Peter: Ahhhh, money in, money out. You want a little more coffee?
Sally: Oh, more, fill it up. I've really gotta cut down on my coffee.
Peter: I used to drink coffee only occasionally. I would go through about a pound of coffee a month. Now I consume about a quart a day.
Sally: That's like a liter. I used to have about 5 cups of latte a day. When I write, I've gotta have caffeine.
Peter: Back in college, I would save money by making my own coffee.
Sally: Yeah, I'm going to have to invest in a small machine.
Peter: I've got to keep it to just a few cups a day. You can try snacking on some carrot sticks and biscuits.
Sally: True.

Let's practice!

Are you good at changing your habits?

Instructions: Circle the correct answer.

1. Which sentence talks about a necessary action in the future?
 - a. I've got to keep it to just a few cups of coffee a day.
 - b. I'm going to have to cut down on my coffee.
 - c. I've got to have caffeine when I write.
2. Which sentence talks about a necessary action for the present?
 - a. I'm going to have to make my own coffee to save money.
 - b. I'm going to have to invest in a small machine.
 - c. I've got to save money.

Let's practice!

How much do you consume* every day?

*"To consume" can mean to purchase or to eat/drink a certain amount.

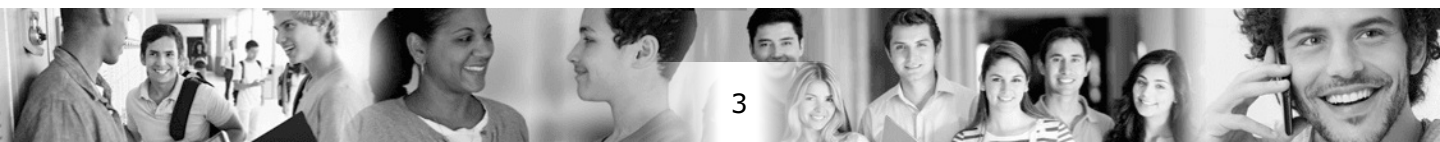

Instructions: Choose the words available in the word bank and place them in the right category.

Word Bank

pound / quart / liter / a lot / some / a few / cup / a little

MEASUREMENTS

QUANTIFIERS

Extension Activity

Write about 3 past habits that may have changed.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Think of 3 past eating or drinking habits you used to have.
- Write a sentence about each of them. Use "used to" and "would".
- Think of 3 current habits you would like to change. Write what you have got to do to change.
- Listen to your partner's ideas and then share yours.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I express past eating habits in writing.

☐ ☐

I express future necessity in my life in writing.

☐ ☐

I listen to my partner's ideas.

☐ ☐

I share my ideas verbally with my partner.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- occasionally (adverb): sometimes or on certain occasions
e.g. I used to drink coffee only occasionally.
- to eat out (verb): to eat away from home at a restaurant
e.g. I only eat out once on the weekend.
- to fill up (verb): a phrasal verb to mean fill up a cup, a container or the car's gasoline tank e.g. Oh, I want more coffee. Fill it up please.
- to cut down (verb): to reduce in amount e.g. I've really gotta cut down on my coffee consumption.
- to go through (verb): to use or consume a certain amount e.g. I would go through about a pound of coffee a month.
- to invest (verb): to spend money, time or effort on something that would be valuable for the future
e.g. I'm going to have to invest in a small cappuccino machine.
- to snack (verb): to eat a small amount between meals
e.g. You can try snacking on some carrot sticks and biscuits.

Learning Points

How much did you use to have?

"Used to" and "would" express an action that occurred regularly in the past.

We use used to do to talk about the past. It is not a tense but it is like a tense. We use used to do for the past only.

We use would to describe the pattern of action in the past.

Past Pattern with used to	Past Pattern with would	Present
I used to drink coffee only occasionally.	I would go through about a pound of coffee a month.	Now I go through about a pound of coffee a week.
I used to have about 5 cups of latte a day.	I would go back to the cafe regularly.	Now I only go twice a day.
I used to live on a tight budget.	Back in college, I would save money by making my own coffee.	I still make my own coffee every morning.

Learning Points

Expressing Necessity

"Have got to" is used to express necessity.

"Going to have to" expresses a necessary action in the future or a condition.

"Have got to" has irregular forms in the past, present and future.

- Present - I've got to save money.
- Past - I had to live on a tight budget.
- Future - I will have to watch my spending habits.

"ve gotta" is an informal contraction for "ve got to" or "have got to".

You use it when you are talking to your friends.

Examples:

She's gotta find a new hobby.

I've gotta have caffeine.

I've really gotta cut down on my coffee.

He's gotta eat more vegetables.

"Going to have to" also expresses a necessary action in the future.

- I'm going have to cut down on my coffee.
- I'm going to have to invest in a small machine.

It's also used as a result in a conditional phrase.

- If I'm on a tight budget, I'm going to have to cook more often at home.

