Let's Start!

Let's learn how to cook!

Learning Outcome

Identify and describe personal and regional eating habits and cooking in a range of communicative situations.

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about celebrations and customs.
- I can describe how to prepare food.
- I can talk about people's past habits.

Ask your partner:

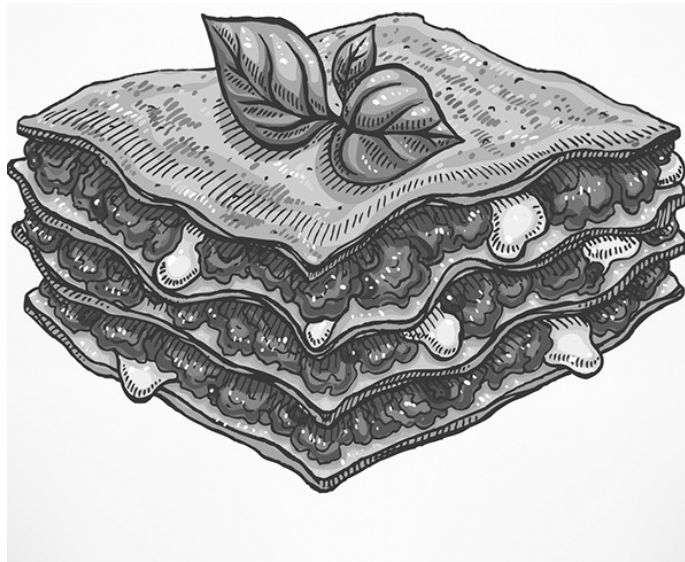

- Have you ever learned how to cook from a recipe?
- Do you think you can follow a recipe easily?

Let's Explore!

Let's learn how to cook!

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Sally: In our family, Italian food was a staple. This is exciting.
- Vanessa: My mom used to teach me how to cook. In our house, we would have lasagna on every holiday.
- Sally: Making good lasagna probably requires attention to detail and patience.
- Vanessa: Absolutely. First, we line the pan with enough noodle strips to cover it.
- Sally: Do we soak them first?
- Vanessa: No, they absorb the moisture from the ingredients. Next, we fry the ground beef in the pan and drain the fat.
- Sally: How much beef do we need?
- Vanessa: For a large lasagna, we need about one and a quarter pound.
- Sally: I used to spend more time cooking but not anymore. Now we put on another noodle layer, right? What's next?
- Vanessa: We put on a pint of cottage cheese. Not too much. And then we lay the top layer of noodles.
- Sally: Then how much cheese do we spread on top?
- Vanessa: We spread about 16 ounces of grated mozzarella cheese to top it off. Now we bake for 45 minutes.

Target Words

- lasagna (noun): an Italian dish made of ground beef and cheese between layers of pasta noodles
e.g. Sally wanted Vanessa to teach her to make lasagna.
- attention to detail (expression): to give special care to the details in a task
e.g. To make a good lasagna requires attention to detail.
- to soak (verb): to make something very wet with water
e.g. You don't have to soak the lasagna noodles in water before cooking.
- moisture (noun): a small amount of liquid that makes something wet
e.g. The dry lasagna noodles absorb the moisture from the other ingredients.
- ground beef (noun): beef that has been ground or broken down to small pieces
e.g. Ground beef is used to make lasagna.
- to spread (verb): to put something all over a large area
e.g. You usually spread mozzarella cheese over the top of lasagna and pizza.

Learning Points

Expressing quantity with food

To talk about specific food quantities and weights the following measures are used throughout North America.

Measurements (Nouns)	Amount
pound (lb) pint (pt) quart (qt) ounce (oz) gallon (gal) dozen	a little less than half a kilogram at 454 g a little less than half a liter a little less than one liter almost 30 ml or 30 grams; 8 oz = 250 ml = 1 measuring cup a little less than 4 liters 12 pieces

In English, we use words we call quantifiers to talk about undefined quantities. These words are also often used with food. We use different quantifiers depending on whether the noun is countable or uncountable.

	Large Quantities	Small Quantities	Zero Quantities	More Than You Need
Countable Lots of (+) Not many (-) How many?	(+) a lot of plenty of	(a) few very few	not ... any none (in short answers)	too many
Uncountable Lots of (+) Not much (-) How much?	(+) a lot of plenty of	(a) little very little	not ... any none (in short answers)	too much

Examples:

- Can you pass me a little salt, please?
- I need to boil a few eggs for the spinach salad.
- I'm full. I ate too much pizza!
- I baked plenty of muffins for everyone plus brownies to top off our meal!
- I have very little icing left for all these cake layers.
- You have plenty of room in the sink to drain the fat from the pan.

Learning Points

What did you use to do?

"Used to" and "would" express a pattern of action that occurred regularly in the past.

But:

Only "used to" expresses repeated habits in the past.

Only "would" is more formal and sentimental.

Structure:

Used to	Would
Subject + used to + verb in basic form (infinitive) + complement	Subject + would + verb in basic form (infinitive) + complement

Examples:

Used to	Would
My mom used to teach me how to cook. I used to spend more time cooking but not anymore.	We would have lasagna on every holiday. My grandfather would read us stories after dinner.

Examples:

- How did you use to get to school before you got a bicycle?
- I used to get up really early to take the bus.
- I used to get up early, and I would take my bike out of the locker, put on my helmet, and I would ride all the way to school.
- Lasagna used to be a staple in our home.
- We used to line the cake trays with wax paper so it wouldn't stick.
